DCCC	CD 2: Against Lea Marquez Peterson	Federal PAC	DCCC (Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee) is the official campaign arm of the Democrats in the House. The DCCC's team of "mostly 20-somethings researches opposition targets for eight weeks at a time, scouring news clips and YouTube videos and traveling across the country to comb through public records, all in hopes of finding a good hit. Discoveries go into hundred-page research books on their targets that are used as bait to recruit candidates, leaked to reporters or cited in campaign advertisements and mail pieces." They have a history of having made unsubstantiated claims against Republican interests, for which they have apologized. There is much controversy over the DCCC's activity in Democratic primaries this year, as they backed some pro-life candidates.
